DUKE ELLINGTON MUSIC SOCIETY

1992/1 Mar-May

As a DEMS member you'll get access from time to time to unique Duke material. Please bear in mind that such material is to be handled with care and common sense. It must under no circumstances be used for commercial purposes. Anyone member being caught with having passed on such material for commercial purposes will result in cancelling his membership, his name published and information handed over to other societies similar to DEMS. As a DEMS member please help see to that this simple rule is followed. Thus we will be able to continue future special offers, such as tapes, AZURE-releases, etc., etc.

ALL FOR THE LOVE OF DUKE !

DEMS is a non-profit organization, depending on voluntary offered assistance in time and material. Sponsors are welcomed.

NEWS FROM DANMARKS RADIO.

I am planning some new programs from the Mercer Ellington donation. DR has launched a new series called Duke box to be send on Saturdays of each month. 4 brand new programs and edited versions of previous broadcasts from 1985-86. Bjarne Busk and I are producing 4, (2 each). The broadcasts are scheduled to be sent on April 4, April 11 and May 23. Accurate details not yet determined but I may be presenting stuff from "MY PEOPLE" including bits from the only known live performace in exsistence. I am also considering after hours attempts from November 23, 1968. Maybe also some takes from May 1971 or it may turn out to be something entirely different.

SOME CHICAGO RECORDING DATES

For some reason I was interested in taking a closer look at the "Stockpile" recording dates known as 17th, 18th, 19th March, and April, 1956. With help of still more gathered material and increased knowledge I came to the following conclusions:

The three March dates were earlier accepted according to the then at hand listings, among which my contemporary ones, being the same as still in the Mercer listings. The 17Mar56 session has proved to be false. The correct date should be accepted to be 3Jan56 (as once correctly stated in the Danish bcs. DR-01 and DR-06).

Reasons: The first of the tape boxes (fig.1) from the session makes the date as 3Jan56 trustworthy - the date is handwritten on the back of the box. Consequently we must accept the notation "5613-1" as to be understood as "1956, January 3rd, followed by a number indicating the first title recorded on the session, "Feet Bone". Further: Duke had just finished a Blue Note engagement, 21Dec55-2Jan56, being around in Chicago. On 17Mar56 he was playing LaSalle/IL.

The 18Mar56 session is still accepted as a correct date for this event (fig.2). One should observe, in this case, that the "3054, 3055, and 3056" numbers are title assignment numbers. (The "3054", not mentioned below, refer to an unissued composition named "Leotard", later known as "Blue Rose".)

The 19Mar56 is also accepted. However, two sessions took place (see next paragraph). Again, compare 3Jan56 above, we can accept the date info on the back of the box, this time typed (fig.4). The "55319-" should read "56319-", the second "5" being a misinterpreted written "6".

The "April, 1956" is what, more recently, has been believed to be the month for the so called "Pentape" session. Also Mercer's listing is giving "April", though with a false year as "1957" (fig.3). Today we have at least two reasons to change the date from "April" to 19Mar56:

- 1) The date is given on the tape box (fig.5).
2) The row of numbers connected with the titles adjoin to the previous 19Mar56 ones, except for one item missing (title so far unknown).

The Pentape release is particular in that, when issued, the content was solely obtainable on tape, and not, as otherwise common, also on microgroove. Only in later years they are to be found on LP releases. LP liner notes seem all to state a wrong date/year. The same goes for hitherto published discographies.

TWO, MOST INTERESTING, BOOK ANNOUNCEMENTS

JAZZ RECORDS 1942-80

Forthcoming discography:

"JAZZ RECORDS, VOL. 6".

Duke Ellington (1942-1974) Edited by Ole J. Nielsen

Comments by Flemming Sjølund

Volume 6 of the series "Jazz Records", is scheduled to be published in connection with the Duke Ellington Convention in Copenhagen from May 28th to May 31st 1992.

It is published by JazzMedia Aps, Dortheavej 39, DK-2400 Copenhagen NV, Denmark.

For this volume, the author Ole J. Nielsen was permitted a much wider approach than previous issued volumes. As a result, it is in many ways different from its predecessors, and I find it necessary to explain the reasons. The book is devoted to one single subject: the music played by Duke Ellington as a performer as well as with his orchestra. Based upon the author's own collection and extensive research, it is a record not only of Ellington's music issued on disc, but of all his post-1941 musical performances that were preserved one way or another. This encompasses unissued commercial recordings, performances recorded from radio or the audience on tape or audio cassette, film soundtracks, and electrical transcriptions. Every recording that has come to the author's attention has been included. Still, I am convinced that the Ellington material accessible to the author in preparation of this book represents but a fraction of all the Ellington music that was recorded. Joe Igo's "Duke Ellington Chronicle" - updated and continuously revised by Gordon Ewing -, and the itineraries in Dr. Klaus Stratemann's forthcoming book on Duke Ellington (yet untitled) provide the picture of an orchestra that was performing under an amazingly busy schedule. Not only did Ellington himself record his band prolifically - frequently at his own expense -, but his performances were recorded by others anywhere and anytime he and his orchestra made an appearance. It is thus to be expected that with the passage of time numerous "sessions" will surface in addition to those that we were able to verify.

Ole J. Nielsen has tried to document Mr. Mercer's donation to the Danish Radio, the "stockpile" as painstakingly as possible, based upon information from the Danish broadcasts, the Danish Radio and from private sources.

Among the contributors we find: Benny Aasland, Sjef Hoefsmit, Dr. Klaus Stratemann, Erik Wiedemann and many others.

The book contains 613 pages and the price for this blue coloured hard-back edition will be app. 50$.

DUKE ELLINGTON
AND FILM BY FILM

DR. KLAUS STRATEMANN

'At the center of big band jazz music is Duke Ellington' stated German jazz critic Joachim Ernst Behrendt. But Ellington was not just one orchestra leader among many.

And he was not simply the most successful and most important big band leader in the history of Afro-American music: He was also among the major composers of large orchestral works of the 20th Century, and has as such been mentioned in one breath with the likes of Schönberg, Bartók, and Stravinsky.

Ellington's compositions ranged from dance tunes and popular songs such as "Sophisticated Lady", "Satin Doll" to extended suites and Sacred Music.

He wrote for floor shows, stage shows, the ballet, the theatre; for television, and for motion pictures; in short, he wrote for every conceivable medium.

In a musical career spanning roughly five decades (1922 to 1974), Ellington and his musicians performed their music at every type of event and location imaginable: from small clubs to concert halls and large arenas; at intimate private parties and before audiences of several thousand; at dances and in concert presentations.

This book is a first among the many publications devoted to Duke Ellington in that it recounts the entire range of his multiple professional activities in chronological order, almost, though not always, day by day.

The band's engagements and the audiences they drew, the grosses they made and the artists they shared the stage with; every detail the author could assemble from literary sources and the pages of trade papers such as "Down Beat", "Billboard" and "Variety" is laid down, from 1929 - the year of Ellington's first film - to the end of his illustrious career in 1974.

The detail combined with background information on recording affiliations and managerial contracts almost amounts to a history of big band jazz, exemplified in Duke Ellington and his orchestra.

From the days when a big band would play a theatre for a week and a nightclub for months, to those when there was a different gig in a different town every night, its all in this book's 700-plus pages.

Generously illustrated with reproductions of ads and rare original documents; and with over 300 photos, most of which have never been published before, the book also provides a visual record of Duke Ellington's distinguished career.

Special sections are devoted to his motion pictures, detailing his work on the screen, on the sound stages and as a film composer. With data collected from film company archives - back to the year 1930 - these film chapters alone are likely to correct many an earlier misconception circulating among Ellington discographers.

- 1. See the West Coast Work Schedule in INTERLUDE 4, and the documentation in chapter 'THE 1934 PARAMOUNT FILMS IN REVIEW'.
2. According to a California Eagle report dated April 28, 1934, 'I Ain't No Star' was then 'all ready except for some retakes Duke Ellington's name' (sic). This is probably a reference to the May 7 and May 8 recordings.
3. Lyriald Jo Trent was then a staff writer at Paramount Studios. A decade earlier, he had been Ellington's collaborator on four songs for the all-black revue, 'Chocolate Kiddies', which toured Europe in 1925 and 1926.
4. In his interviews with Patricia Willard (spring 1983) and Steven Lasker and Claire Gordon (February 1987), Royal stated that in 1934 he was in the band for approximately three weeks, during which time 'Bells Of The Nineties' was made, but he played just the pre-recording sessions. The Ellington band interrupted work on 'Bells' on March 26, for a period of five weeks. By May 7, the date of the next session for 'Bells', Hardwick must have returned.

THE ELLINGTON SOLOISTS (32)

— ISFAHAN —

SLOWLY, LAZILY
[HODGES]

Handwritten musical score for 'Isfahan' by Duke Ellington. The score is written on ten systems of five staves each. The top staff is the melody, and the bottom staff is the harmonies. The piece is marked 'SLOWLY, LAZILY' and '[HODGES]'. The score includes measure numbers 1 through 32, with some measures containing triplets. The key signature is B-flat major, and the time signature is 4/4. The score is annotated with various musical notations, including dynamics, articulation, and performance instructions.

● It is some measure of my regard and affection for the genius of Johnny Hodges that I follow, straitaway, with yet another beautiful paraphrasing of yet another beautiful melody from the Ellington treasure chest. This delectable reading of ISFAHAN comes from the 1966 recordings of THE FAR EAST SUITE, and stands — to my heart and ear — on a pinnacle of achievement, both as a characteristic illumination of the incomparable, uniquely Ellingtonian way with harmony: with lush progression and seamless modulation, the while integrating and absolutely stunning tune with the quite wonderful and surprising chord progressions.

So, in this musical example I have awarded equal attention to the splendid chording beneath the equally splendid strain, and, to inspire the full impact and richness of the accompanying changes, have voiced them in six-part harmony, mostly spanning two octaves, sometimes more.

I evaluate this particular movement from this altogether superb suite as a supreme demonstration of the art, craft and cooperation of both composer and interpreter. Yes, the work of Johnny Hodges, Ellington's premier soloist, remains a miracle of poise, depth, soul and unsurpassable beauty.

FILM BY FILM ( ctd. )

A special chronological appendix of Duke Ellington's TV appearances; and another with charts of the personnel fluctuations in the Ellington band add to the rich documentation.

This is definitely not a book to be read from beginning to end in one sitting; and not everyone is likely to be interested in all that is found between its covers.

It is one to browse through, or to turn to in search of information: Access is provided with 80 pages of indexes on persons and musical units; on compositions, venues, cities; and with a general index covering films, radio, TV, theatre and other subjects.

This is a book for the scholar and the jazz enthusiast; for the film lover and for anyone with an affinity for American show business.

Above all, it is a must for those with an interest in that genius of American music, Duke Ellington.

Publication in conjunction with the ELLINGTON CONFERENCE in Copenhagen, where the book will first be made available by Knudsen's JazzMedia APS. The price is yet to be set by the publisher.

Size DIN A4, hard bound with dust cover
700 pages of text; plus indexes
